4-H Boys And Girls Will Attend Meet

Thirteen 4-H'ers will represent this county at the annual 4-H Week, that is to be held in Lexington during the week of June 4th.

They are Larry Rhodes, Robert Young, who will compete for state honors with a team demonstration entitled, "Livestock Conservation". Dan McCusick and Ronald McCage will also compete for state honors by team demonstrating their ability to lay out a farm reservoir. County terrace winner, Larry Dunn and Wayne Mathis will also receive a trip to 4-H Week. They however will not enter any state event.

In the girl's division, June Foy will display her ability in demonstrating "How to prepare a well-balanced, teen-age snack". Frankie Erwin will compete for state honors by presenting a speech entitled "Advantages of Rural Living". Marjorie Myers will model a well-tailored suit.

Other 4-H'ers who will go to 4-H Week but are not in the official agenda will be: Annette Palmer, County dairy foods winner; Linda Lawson, style revue winner; Sandra Bedwell, County bread winner; and Danna Ruth Grogan, winner in the County Junior speech contest.

The boys will leave Murray at 8:00 a.m. Monday, June 4. They will be accompanied by Emil Bless, Assistant County Agent. The girls will leave 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, June 5. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Barlett A. Wraether, Home Demonstration Agent.

Camping At Pakentuck Begins June 10

Summer Camping will start at Boy Scout Camp Pakentuck on Sunday, June 10th this year. There will be four camping periods. First week will be June 3 - 9. Second period, June 10 - 16. Third period, June 17 - 23. Fourth period, June 24 - 30. Final period, July 1 - 7.

At Pakentuck there are 200 acres of beautiful, unspoiled land and streams. There will be hiking expeditions aplenty on numerous old trails. The camp is located just a few miles from Ozark, Illinois, in the foothills of the historic Mississippi Valley in the heart of the Shawnee National Forest. It may be reached by five highways, and is far enough away to make the trip a real adventure to a Scout.

Reservations should be made through the Scout Office at 902 Broadway. These reservations will entitle boys to a week of swimming, life-rafting, bait casting, hiking, adventure trails, survival skills, marksmanship, archery, handicrafts skills, and advancement in all Scouting skills, plus plenty of good food and good fun at the Campfire sessions.

Jim Anderson, Camp Director, announced that the fee will again be only $11.00 per week for boys coming with adult leadership and $14.00 per week for boys coming without adult leadership.

World Now Has Better Understanding

PHILADELPHIA, June 4 (AP) — A. Z. Baker, president of Rotary International, said today that a spirit of "neighborliness" is advancing throughout the world and contributing to better understanding among nations and peoples divided for decades.

Baker addressed some 9,000 delegates to the 47th annual convention of Rotary Clubs from 51 nations of the free world. He has traveled 70,000 miles in 41 countries since last July.

The Rotary president said the quality of "neighborliness" is the tie that binds Rotarians from throughout the world together despite differences in language, customs, nationality or religion.

Baker said that during his journey through Europe, Africa, the Americas and the Far East, he found a spirit of neighborliness was "removing or lowering man-made barriers that have divided different countries in Europe, has eased the tensions that are the cause of the evolution of national and racial friendship in Africa, and that neighborliness is being rapidly developed in the Far East among countries that only a few years ago were at war, serving to erase memories of the past and build friendly relations for the future."

Baker also read a welcome from President Eisenhower, who saluted the delegates as "members of an organization which brings together in a common purpose citizens of many lands, and which has long sought to promote international peace and good will and understanding."

Kenneth Crowmell won fourth in the farm shop contest. Another fourth place was won by Charles Outland in the dairy contest.

Jimmy Thompson was fourth in impromptu speaking with his subject "Selecting dairy cows on a basis of breeding records."

The chapter received a silver emblem on all its activities and Wells Owen and Donald Crawford received the State Farmer degree.

Money won by the chapter and community dairying, $75.00; and chapter scrapbook, $15.00.

In the cooperative contest, the chapter president, Larry Sutter, will receive an all expense paid trip to the University of North Carolina as the American Institute of Cooperation meeting in July.

John Harrison Dies After Accident

John Harrison, former assistant county agent in Calloway County, in charge of 4-H activity, died on Friday night from burns suffered when he came into contact with a high voltage line on Monday.

Harrison died in a Memphis, Tennessee hospital where he was taken after the accident.

According to reports, Harrison was visiting his father near Cayce, Kentucky, and witnessed an automobile accident in front of his father's home. A woman had had an accident and had tumbled a pole which held high tension wire.

Harrison is reported to have assisted the ambulance driver in placing the injured woman in the ambulance. As he stepped back, he came in contact with the wire which was partially hidden. The terrific force made his body burst into flame and at the same time threw him away from the wires.

He was in critical condition all during the week with badly burned legs. He succumbed on Friday.

Harrison was well known in the county having worked with the 4-H clubs for some time. His many friends in the county will be saddened to hear of his untimely passing.

Chandler And Waterfield Now In Real Estate Business

By THOMAS E. GISH
United Press Staff Correspondent
FRANKFORT, June 4 (AP) — Gov. A. B. Chandler and Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield have gone into the real estate business here as partners in a subsidiary, advertised as the best building site, "this side of paradise."

Waterfield and Chandler are two of five persons listed in Franklin County Courthouse records as the recent purchasers of the 44-acre tract of land in east Frankfort, off the Georgetown Road.

The land has been subdivided into lots for residences and is an addition to the Indian Hills Subdivision.

The other purchasers were James C. Pickett, Franklin Goina and Warner Hines. The sellers were the Scruggs Estate.

The deed has a federal documentary tax of $72.62 indicating a total purchase price of $66,000.

The land has been subdivided into some 130 residential building lots. They are for sale prices at $1,800 for regular lots, $2,000 for corner lots. One large lot is priced at $3,000.

"The land is to the rear of the present Indian Hills Subdivision which has been developed by Pickett & Goina during the last five years."

Goina is an administrative assistant to Waterfield who assists the lieutenant governor in supervising activities of the Legislative Research Commission.

Pickett served as a deputy clerk for the House of Representatives during the recent legislative session. The two for several years have operated a real estate and insurance agency here under the name, Pickett & Goina.

Hines is the son of H. K. Hines, manager of the Frankfort Electric and Water Plant Board. The Hines family has extensive real estate interests here.

The Indian Hills Subdivision is restricted to brick or stone residences. Most houses cost from $15,000 to $25,000. The subdivision is popular with state officials and employees.

Khrushchev Denunciation Of Stalin Is Released Today

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev, in his now-famous secret speech in Moscow last February, denounced the late Josef Stalin as a "sickly suspicious tyrant who murdered 'many thousands' of his Red comrades to satisfy his half-mad lust for 'superman' power."

The full force of Khrushchev's unopposed denunciation of the Soviet dictator became known today when the State Department made public a 26,000-word text of the speech. Khrushchev delivered it Feb. 24 before stunned Red leaders attending the twelfth congress of the Communist Party.

The department cautioned that it "does not vouch for the authenticity" of the document, which came into U. S. hands from "a confidential source." But it said the text is "understood to have been prepared for the guidance of the Communist Party leadership outside of Russia."

The document disclosed that Khrushchev's post-mortem indictment of Stalin was even more bitter and far-ranging than was indicated by then piecemeal leaks at the time of the speech.

Some of the newly-disclosed Khrushchev charges:

1. Stalin plotted to "do away" with just-resigned Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Trade Minister Anastas Mikoyan. These two "old Bolsheviks" would not "be here today" had Stalin not died on March 5, 1953, before he could carry out his plot against them.
2. Stalin needlessly fomented the 1948 Kremlin break with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, and boasted that "I will shake my little finger—and there will be no more Tito." Khrushchev noted that Tito did not fall. In fact, he is in Moscow today on a make-friends visit to the new Russian leaders and pointedly snubbed Stalin's tomb by laying a wreath only on the tomb of the late Nikolai Lenin.
3. Stalin ignored British warnings of the Nazi invasion in 1941. When the attack came, "Stalin flew into a cowardly panic. His 'nervousness and hysteria' and his 'blundering' interference with military operations 'caused our army serious damage' and caused hundreds of thousands of Russian troops to be slaughtered. His first order to the Red army was not to return Nazi fire—because Stalin was not convinced an invasion actually was underway."

Khrushchev, who served in the Kremlin's inner circle throughout the terror-filled Stalin regime, painted a graphic picture of what it was like to work under a dictator like Stalin.

"Stalin was a very distrustful man, sickly suspicious," he said. "He could look at a man and say: 'Why are your eyes so shiny today?' or 'Why are you turning so much today and avoiding to look me directly in the eyes—everywhere and in everything he was 'emeries'—two-faces' and 'spies'."

The document made public today was evidently a summary, rather than a complete text, of the Khrushchev speech. Reports at the time said Khrushchev harangued the party congress for three and a half hours. Summaries of his speech were later sent to Communist leaders to be used in the new regime's open campaign to wipe out the demigod status which Stalin had held in Russia for many years.

Murray Loses Diamond Title To Newport

LOUISVILLE, June 4 (AP) — The Newport Catholic High School baseball team captured their fourth Kentucky State High School Baseball Championship here, this weekend by edging Murray, 4-3, on a single in the bottom of the last inning.

Newport had jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first frame on four hits by Tom Ferring, Danny Shea, Paul Meyers and Dave Schneider. Murray hurler Tommy Wells held Newport scoreless for the next five innings while some sharp batters running put Murray back in the game.

In the final two frames, Murray threatened, but Meyers spoiled both rallies with strikeouts in the last inning. Meyers smashed a ground single to wrap it up for Newport.

Newport moved into the finals by edging Southern 2-0. Danny Shea out of the Rebels with only three hits and struck out nine batters. Dave Gividen started for Southern and was relieved in the fifth by Tom Deringer. Gividen was charged with the loss.

Murray downed Henderson, 5-4, to get into the championship game. A four run rally in the past inning fell short and failed to pull the game out of the fire for Henderson.

Clements Appears To Be In Firm Control Of State Demos

By THOMAS E. GISH
United Press Staff Correspondent
LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Sen. Earle C. Clements appeared in front of the Democratic caucus here today to announce his candidacy for governor in the November election.

Clements' victory over Chandler backed Joe B. Bates can be expected to mean the end of the party's long struggle to elect a Democrat to the governor's office.

First, permit Clements to name his own running mate as a candidate in November to succeed the late Alben W. Barkley in the Senate.

Second, raise a big question as to whether Chandler can go to the Democratic National Convention as Kentucky's "favorite son" candidate for president.

Third, allow former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby to remain as Democratic Party national committeeman from Kentucky.

Fourth, cost Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield $5,000 a year.

The immediate problem facing Clements is to find a running mate who will add strength to the Democratic ticket in November, to offset the vote-pulling power of a possible Republican Eisenhower-Morton-Cooper ticket.

There was renewed speculation that Clements might turn to Jefferson County for the candidate, partly because of the proven popularity of Cooper and Martin in the Louisville area, and partly to repay Jefferson County Democrats for the $5,000 majority he received in the county.

Two names were being taken most — former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby and former Louisville Mayor Wilson Wyatt.

There also was talk about Bert T. Combs, Prestonsburg, who made the unsuccessful race for governor in the Democratic primary against Chandler last fall.

Clements is in a position to name the man.

Actually, Clements already had been in technical control of the party machinery prior to the elections. But new county, district and state party officials are to be chosen and control would have been expected to pass to Chandler had Clements lost.

The Democratic state convention, to be held in Louisville July 3rd, will decide what rule Kentucky's delegation will play at the national convention in Chicago. It is no secret that Chandler hopes the state convention will endorse him as a "favorite son" candidate for president.

But Clements now is expected to be in a position to grant Chandler the "favorite son" honor, or to deny it, as he chooses.

There is a strong possibility that Clements, for the sake of party "harmony," would see that Chandler got the favorite son designation in return for a promise of all-out support from Chandler in the fall. Chandler pledged support to Clements, but did not say just how hard he plans to work for the senator.

The state convention also will select Kentucky's national committeeman. With Clements in control, Wetherby might be retained in the post. Had Clements lost control, the post probably would have gone to Chandler.

The job of executive secretary of the State Central Executive Committee pays $3,000 a year. Traditionally, Democratic Lieutenant governors hold the post and the current lieutenant governor, Harry Lee Waterfield, had been expected to be named to succeed former Lt. Gov. Emerson Beauchamp. Now, however, Beauchamp can be expected to continue as the party secretary.

White House Lawn Feeds Little Mo

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D. C. — "Little Mo," a two-year-old elephant, was fed today by a group of White House staff members. The elephant, which was brought to the White House by a circus, was seen by a large number of people who gathered on the White House lawn.

"Dagabundest thing I ever saw," said circus press agent Zac Freedman, a man who has been making publicity stunts for a long time. "I could get away with this sort of thing at Hollywood and Vine or in New York," Zac said. "But I expected to see one valuable elephant not to mention my own life when I unloaded 'Little Mo' right outside the White House. It was wise, that's what you could call Washington."

The press agent maintains that the baby pachyderm, one of the principals of "The Greatest Show On Earth" is really a Republican at heart.

Likes Golf Balls
"She liked the GOP grass she tramped in," he said. "She even had an eye crooked on Ike's putting green. She is so Republican she likes golf balls."

The big show this year is featuring 10 baby elephants, who together tip the scales at something like 13,000 pounds. They form an elephant band, really. The kiddie trumpeters trumpet with their trumpets while keeping time with their feet on the cymbals.

They rock and roll and do something that sounds a little like the song "Davy Crockett."

Easy To Train
These jungle critters were caught when very young and tender and were easy to train. They took a bunking to the hay from the fields of Illinois and Minnesota and Iowa and they like their purified water coming from tubs and buckets, instead of that out of pools populated by crocodiles.

Time was, right after World War II, when the big top had trouble with its elephants. The circus picked up a boatful of tired old beasts from the Germans as war surplus.

These big tubes arrived here and a bunch of American handlers took over.

The American spoke nothing but English. The elephants understood commands only in German. They understood a book, for sure, but English, no. The crisis was finally solved by the importation of a crew of German handlers.

Tito May Ask Reds To Release Grip

Editor's Note: President Tito of Yugoslavia, who rarely talks with newspapers, has granted an exclusive interview to The United Press. The following dispatch by Wilbur G. Landrey, manager of The United Press bureau in Paris, tells how Tito hopes for active co-existence with the Soviet Union while maintaining an independent foreign policy and friendship with the West.

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent
BELGRADE, Y. P. — Yugoslavia will continue friendly relations with the West while joining the Soviet Union in "active co-existence," President Tito declared today.

He hailed what he called the "historic change" in Russia as "a development in a direction which undoubtedly will have tremendous importance in easing world tension and for preserving peace and international cooperation."

Tito, once regarded as a renegade by the Communist party despite his own Communist government in Yugoslavia, will visit Moscow next month for talks with Soviet leaders.

Talks Not Set
"What problems will be the subject of our (Moscow) talks has not been fixed," the President said in his exclusive interview with United Press. "There is no agenda of the questions. But of course, we will discuss the problem of our mutual relations and the further development of those relations. There also will be talks on some misunderstandings of minor importance."

Wearing a double-breasted business suit and seated in a richly-brocaded lounge chair in the drawing room of the White Palace, Tito also made the following points:

1. "I believe the Atlantic pact will cease to exist one day when the members are convinced it is unnecessary, just as the Warsaw pact will cease to exist."

2. He called on the United States to transform its aid to Yugoslavia from outright grants to long-term loans, like those granted by Russia.

3. He said disarmament should be the next step in attempts to ease world tension and opposed holding out for the reunification of Germany as a condition of a disarmament agreement.

No New Cominform
4. He opposed the formation of a new organization of Communist parties to replace the Cominform, but he said Yugoslavia and Soviet parties should cooperate to help improve relations between Communist nations.

Tito, who understands English, listened carefully to Jozef Vilfan, head of the President's office, translated from Serbo-Croatian into English.

"I don't think our relations with the western countries will suffer any changes from our side," Tito said in answer to a question about the effect of his Moscow visit.

"It is desirable that these relations become better and not deteriorate," he added. "It is also desirable that our independent attitude be clear to western countries so they will not expect us to change it in the future."

Tito's voice bore a note of irony as he said future aid from the United States should be in the form of long-term loans instead of gifts to avoid charges of receiving support from one side of the Iron Curtain while pledging allegiance to the other.

BLAST HURTS THREE
 EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Poison cyanide gas touched off an explosion at the Mead Johnson plant Monday night, injuring three firemen and two other persons. The injured were hospitalized in fair condition.

Temperatures should be kept low when cooking cheese dishes. For oven casseroles, 350 degrees is right. Try putting a casserole in a pan of hot water to keep the bottom and sides from overcooking before the center is done.

Challenge For Dr. Mays

A new novel by ELIZABETH SEIFERT.
 © 1955, by Elizabeth Seifert. Reprinted by permission of the publisher, Dodd, Mead & Co., Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS
 A group of doctors in the Midwestern suburb of Bensenville try to establish a free screening clinic despite lack of money and opposition from the County Hospital. Dr. John Blandin, a strong leader of the group, returns from a meeting and tells his wife, Helen, that enough money has been donated by the wealthy Mrs. Alice Millburn to finance the clinic. Mrs. Millburn donates the money to spite the Women's Club because they voted against helping the project. Dr. Chad Mays, brilliant but recent young medical administrator, is hired to organize the clinic and fight the opposition, led by influential Dr. Claude Wilkins-Smith, head of County Hospital. Dr. Mays refuses to remain unidentified until he can investigate. Sitting in the park near the clinic, Dr. Mays meets a youngster and John who is brought to the park every day by his mother, a pretty, young blonde named Nellie. One day Mays accidentally meets Nellie's mother, a newspaper reporter, and his wife, Stella. He promises Nellie a good story soon. Meanwhile, Dr. Blandin tells Dr. Mays that he is a young intern from County Hospital and Dr. Blandin to present their facts and charges to the Policy and Practices Board of the Medical Society.

CHAPTER 9
THE Policy and Practices
 Board of the County Medical Society was made up of ten doctors. That evening, seven were present, which was about average. They met in a private dining room of the Red Coach Inn. John Blandin was the last doctor to come in, and the other men commented upon that fact. John, the secretary of the Board, was a stickler for punctuality at meetings. This evening he merely took his chair beside the Chairman and said, "Why not get on with it, now?"

Dr. Gaskins, across from John, glanced obliquely down the table at Dr. Moore, the youngest man on the Board. "I still think," Moore said definitely, "that it's primarily a matter for the Clinic Board."

John stiffened. He had been considering a means to tell this group about his visitors. "What's that about the clinic?" he asked abruptly.

"We're getting a good many adverse comments about your Dr. Mays," said Dr. Sanders.

"Oh? Comments, Sanders? Or actual charges?"

"The man's a screwball," said Dr. Lackey with definiteness.

"A very smart young man," murmured Dr. Gaskins.

"What's smart about him? I mean, what does he do? I can put in a whole afternoon at the clinic, and never see the man. I can come out—and there he is."

John smiled. "I had a couple of visitors this evening," he said quietly. "Their call made your secretary a few minutes late. I'd like to repeat our conversation to you, gentlemen, in your official capacity as members of this important Board."

As he talked, his eyes circled the table, his gaze holding in turn upon the face of each doctor. None of these doctors interrupted John. As he talked, he could judge the degree of their belief—and their surprise. He hoped he was doing a better job of containing his own feelings than they were, but he guessed not.

He'd scarcely finished when a storm of comment broke upon him.

Typical intern gripe . . .

Wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole . . .

His jaw knotted, John waited for the voices ceased. Then McCaffrey smiled at him. "Did you believe their story, Blandin?"

"I did. What's more, I think any one of you in my place would have believed it."

"You think the Society should investigate Wilkins-Smith?" asked Gaskins, in an awed doctortone. "If he's doing what his interns claim he's doing, we're morally bound to do more than investigate him."

"Why'd they come to you?"

"Because I'm on this Board, and on the Clinic Board, too. They hinted that Dr. Wilkins-Smith has personal reasons for fighting the clinic."

"I say, let the clinic make its own investigation," said Sanders. "And we'll wait to act on its findings."

"I say," cried Lackey, "to table the whole matter. I so move."

"But," protested John, "if the Society is worth a dime to the community . . ."

"There's a motion before the Chair, Doctor."

Helpless, John saw his discussion tabled, and he was faced with the Board's decision not to touch the young doctor's charges. But when the meeting adjourned, he could and did protest to each member.

In various ways they all advised him to keep clear of the thing. He knew such a matter led only to grief—embarrassment—possibly real harm to his professional standing.

John Blandin drove home, knowing that he was not going to sleep well that night.

Postmen Meet On Bad Dog Problem

By ROBERT F. COLL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — The Post Office today enlisted a team of dog psychologists, including a dog psychologist, to work out a policy of peaceful co-existence between mailmen and dogs.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announced he has called "five nationally-known canine authorities" for a conference here June 5 to seek a peaceful solution in the ancient feud.

"The biting of mailmen by dogs is a serious problem," Summerfield growled. "Nearly 6,000 letter carriers were bitten last year and three-fourths of this number required medical treatment."

Medicine Policy
The move was viewed by government observers as a modification of recent Post Office policy.

Earlier this month, Summerfield had warned that his men might use new wonder-weapons, including dog repellent and protective trousers.

Stressing the conciliatory nature of the forthcoming conference, Summerfield said he has nothing personal against man's best friend. But he said that "in addition to the suffering, which is the major concern, there were delays in the delivery of the mails and needless expense" as a result of dogs bites.

As a dog lover and owner myself, I know that obedience training of a pet is not only easy but also rewarding for both the owner and the dog," Summerfield asserted.

The mediation team will be made up of William E. Buckley, New York American Kennel Club; George Foley, Philadelphia, publisher of "Popular Dogs" magazine; C. R. Harbison, New York, dog psychologist; William A. Rockefeller Jr., New York, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; and Kerns Wright, Denver, American Humane Society.

Legion Auxiliary Hears Reports By District Officers

The American Legion Auxiliary held its regular meeting Monday, May 28, at seven o'clock in the evening at the Legion Hall on Maple Street.

Mrs. Geraldine Dickerson, district president, discussed activities of the Auxiliary including the state convention to be held at Paducah in July.

The rehabilitation district chairman, Mrs. Ethel Lowe, gave a very impressive talk on her visits to the Veterans Hospital at Outwood.

Officers of the local Auxiliary are Mrs. Robert Young, president; Mrs. Edgar Overbey, vice-president; Mrs. Ned Wilson, secretary; Mrs. Earl Nanny, treasurer; Mrs. August Wilson, chaplain; Mrs. Fred Cochran, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Louise Thurston, historian.

A report of the Poppy Day sales was made and a check for forty-one dollars from the proceeds of the square dance was sent to the Murray Hospital toward a nursery unit.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edgar Overbey.

Most Overdo Packing On Motor Trip

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Most folks don't know what to fetch when they are starting on a long motor trip.

Almost everybody overdoes it. Friend of mine sent his wife ahead to St. Louis by plane and she overdid the packing to the point where it cost the old man eight dollars for overweight on the luggage. She had everything in her gear but the bathtub and the piano.

So a few days later, Pop scrubbed his machine and mac ready to pick up Mom in St. Louis for a trip to California. He packed seven suits, 20 shirts, 3 dozen pair of socks. A set of tools, three bathrobes, a case of soap, blankets in case of having to sleep under the stars. Not to mention overshoes, three razors, raincoats and other things which are not earthly good on a long trip.

The American Automobile Association calls upon an old saying when it advises folks to "travel light." It's pretty good advice.

One-Bag Traveler
A couple of years ago I spent nearly a month in France and lugged along only one big bag. It was filled with washable nylon shirts—only six—underwear, and three suits, with some lightweight slacks which complemented the jackets of the suits. A bar of Ivory soap and a washcloth. Plus the usual, like shaving gear was for the teeth, and powder for the feet.

When traveling in these United States one doesn't have to worry about cleaning or laundry. You never are more than a few minutes away from a spot that will press a pair of pants or wash a shirt in a hurry. A lot of motels even advertise to do the job during the dark hours when sensible tourists are asleep.

Traveling List
The AAA has a list of things one ought to take on a trip. Maps, for sure. Travelers checks. A first aid kit, which takes up little room in the glove compartment. A light-weight travel iron. A flashlight. Camera, if you are a flicker fan. Thermos jug. Sun glasses. And other trinkets like tops if the kids are aboard.

That, of course, in addition to sensible clothes like sports gear. If you want to see America these days you don't have to doll up very much. In most motels you don't need a tie, even to nib and have a fine steak dinner.

"Clothes won't make your trip," is the way the AAA puts it in a booklet called "Travel Tips."

Don't Spoil Trip
"But," the auto folks warn, "a lack of a wrap you need or the burden of too much luggage can spoil it."

In General, a woman needs to take a tailored suit, a change of blouses and accessories, plus a few hats and comfortable shoes. Maybe a couple of dresses for the cocktail or dinner hour.

Of course, mere man can get away with very little, but he ought to have at least one suit that would look all right in fancy places and it doesn't have to be formal.

America is getting away from the formal business unless the invitation says "black tie" or "white tie" and most motels and hotels don't say anything about a tie at all.

If you buy cheese in large amounts, cut off an immediate supply and cover the unused cheese with paraffin to prevent drying.

Brown eggs are just as good as white ones. The color of the shell depends on the breed of the hens and doesn't affect the inside.

Stay Away From Sol To Be Safe

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON — One way to prevent sunburn is to stay away from old Sol.

Another is to dab several ounces of prevention on sections of your anatomy you aim to expose to the hot rays.

Personally, I don't intend to do any prolonged outdoor sitting. I've discovered like a lot of others that some soda parlors around the country have lamps for sale that will give an artificial tan.

On my annual leave, which is coming up presently, I intend to look into this method in the interest of science.

With this in mind, I went down to the Government Printing Office and, for a nickel, picked up a Public Health Service pamphlet called "Sunburn and Suntan."

The little four-page booklet starts out by saying that a lot of folks ruin their vacations by trying to build up a brown look too many layers at a time.

Beware The Noonday Sun
The Health Service has some suggestions. First off, you should know from experience how much sun your hide can handle. Even if you're sure, watch out for the noonday sun.

"Some of the worst cases of sunburn," the pamphlet goes on "are collected on the beaches and on the snow-covered mountains. Even when the sun is overcast, the sun can burn cruelly."

The Health Service has found that kids burn more easily than big folks. Babies under age two and delicate children of any age need a watchful eye. It is deemed advisable for the very young to start out in spurts of five minutes at a time.

Stay Away From Sol To Be Safe

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — One way to prevent sunburn is to stay away from old Sol.

Another is to dab several ounces of prevention on sections of your anatomy you aim to expose to the hot rays.

Personally, I don't intend to do any prolonged outdoor sitting. I've discovered like a lot of others that some soda parlors around the country have lamps for sale that will give an artificial tan.

On my annual leave, which is coming up presently, I intend to look into this method in the interest of science.

With this in mind, I went down to the Government Printing Office and, for a nickel, picked up a Public Health Service pamphlet called "Sunburn and Suntan."

The little four-page booklet starts out by saying that a lot of folks ruin their vacations by trying to build up a brown look too many layers at a time.

Beware The Noonday Sun
The Health Service has some suggestions. First off, you should know from experience how much sun your hide can handle. Even if you're sure, watch out for the noonday sun.

"Some of the worst cases of sunburn," the pamphlet goes on "are collected on the beaches and on the snow-covered mountains. Even when the sun is overcast, the sun can burn cruelly."

The Health Service has found that kids burn more easily than big folks. Babies under age two and delicate children of any age need a watchful eye. It is deemed advisable for the very young to start out in spurts of five minutes at a time.
